

The whole system is wrong currently. It is about time the infrastructure was updated. The country should be wired with fiber. Then cable companies should only provide programming and compete nationwide, like long distance services and large dish satellite.

The only monopoly should be the one pipe to the house and local phone service, and people should be able to subscribe from other companies for any service they want connected to it, whether it be basic telephone, video on demand, cable channels, OTA channels, and or Broadband internet.
